 9/9 : 10 AM to 4 PM : Rancho Days at the Adobe

Location: Boronda Adobe History Center, Salinas, California 93907

The staff and docents will provide guided tours of the 1844-46 Jose Eusebio Boronda Adobe. Our tours will be presented in English and Spanish for our “Rancho Days celebration” of that weekend. Our tour guides will be costumed as reenactors for the period of significance, and guests will be provided tours of the newly opened Gumper-Castro Library, which includes the integration of vintage Victorian architectural elements and a treasure trove of books on early California history and culture. Finally, smaller groups will be provided a behind-the-scenes tour of the Archival Vaults of the Monterey County Historical Society featuring the Spanish & Mexican Archives spanning the period from 1770 through 1856 and the Archaeology Vault with its collections predating European contact on the central California coast and Monterey Bay. Finally, guests will be provided refreshments consisting of Mexican and early California-themed chocolate and soups of the period.

 9/9 to 9/10 : 11 AM to 4 PM : Visit the Monday Club - A Julia Morgan Masterpiece

Location: The Monday Club, San Luis Obispo, California 93401

A visit to The Monday Club is a unique opportunity to tour a 1934 vintage women's club designed by Architect Julia Morgan. During the first quarter of the 20th century Julia Morgan was the first woman granted an architectural license in California, the 19th Amendment granting women a constitutional right to vote was ratified by Congress, and The Monday Club was founded by a dynamic group of women in 1924. Similarly significant contributions by civic-minded women were being made elsewhere in California and in the world.

Visitors to The Monday Club will enjoy viewing original architectural features including murals, hardwood herringbone floors and the open truss system that was a recurring element in many of Miss Morgan's buildings.

Integral to appreciating the history of The Monday Club is an understanding of what was occurring elsewhere in our country and the world during this period. On display will be an educational timeline that we have created depicting 100 years of history and events in San Luis Obispo, California and the world. Interpretive discussion of the timeline will be part of the docent-led tours that will be ongoing throughout the Doors Open event and a scheduled lecture on Saturday, June 11, 2022, with Laura Sorveti a Julia Morgan scholar will be included.

The mission of The Monday Clubhouse Conservancy is to preserve and restore the historic landmark known as The Monday Club of San Luis Obispo and to provide public access to the landmark for educational purposes, and to carry on other charitable and educational activities associated with this goal as allowed by law.

The Monday Club was nominated to the National Register of Historic Places in 2016, listing 16000245.

The Monday Clubhouse Conservancy is a 501(c)3 nonprofit organization.

 9/9 to 9/10 : 10AM, 1PM, 4PM to 1PM, 4PM, 7PM : Visit the Old Truckee Jail Museum slammer from 1875, which still works!

Location: 10065 Donner Pass Road, Truckee, California 96161

Starting at the Truckee Train Depot you'll get a great look at nine interactive displays of Truckee History in our new Museum of Truckee History. We'll then take a short walk to visit town's first cabin that Joseph Gray built back in 1863. From there we'll take a stroll down the first little wagon road into town, now Jibboom Street. Down at the west end of the street we'll find the Old Truckee Jail Museum. This old jail no longer operates as a jail but it still works, so bring your camera. We'll then climb a short but steep path to High Street and home of a lot of history and great photos from the Rocking Stone Tower that sits next our 1941 Veterans Memorial Building designed by California's first State Architect, George Sellon. Back down the hill to our Victory Plaza, home of our mama Eagle protecting her young statue in honor of WW1 veterans. Stroll back across the street to the Truckee Donner Railroad Society Museum located in a Caboose car next to the train depot back where we started 3 hours ago. Plan on Tours leaving at 10AM, 1PM & 4PM both Saturday and Sunday. Tours provided by the President & Curator of the Truckee-Donner Historical Society and resident since 1962, the old miner and sure to be a great tour for Doors Open California participants.

Location: 401 I Street, Sacramento, California 95814

The City of Sacramento completed an extensive renovation of the Sacramento Valley Station in 2017. The station has 4 spaces deemed to be significant under the National Historic Register. One of those spaces is the second floor corridor which was faithfully restored in our rehabilitation but is only accessible to lease tenants on a daily basis. This floor also contains one of two original vault doors in-situ. The renovation project added an exterior 1,200 sf roof deck on the third floor that is also not available to the public at this time. Both of these areas are accessible by elevator. The roof deck area will provides a vista of downtown and the Railyards area and a short talk on future development plans will be given. The tour will begin in the Main Waiting Room, under the MacQuarrie mural, with a discussion of the interior renovation of this significant space, and include other areas on the ground floor by guided tour. The tour will include details of the restoration, the creative use of the historic elements for sustainable energy design (eg. Storm Windows, radiant floor heat/cool under 6,000 sf marble floor, and recirculating stratified warm air through the Main Waiting Room chandelier medallions) and facts on the restoration of the historic mural.

9/9 : 11 AM to 4 PM : Rediscovering Vintage Lost & Found Films and Why They Matter - Special Presentation and Tour

Location: Niles Essanay Silent Film Museum & Edison Theater, Fremont, California 94536

There are elements of a scavenger hunt, a time-sensitive escape room and the Amazing Race when it comes to locating and preserving vintage films. What do you do when a film is falling apart and decomposing before your eyes? Is there any point in saving it? Many times in early filmmaking there were no titles or credits listed. How can one know what the film is about, when it happened and even who made it if there is no more information accompanying the spool of nitrate? And why does it matter? Find out how the state of construction of buildings as seen on the celluloid, listings in city directories can help document a time and place. Also, why other more minute details like rain puddles in the streets, license plates on cars, angles of the sun, non-standard film perforations, and (thankfully) excruciating detailed people who get every bit of information listed on a website or database help researchers find out the facts about a film made more than a century before. What research methods were employed before the internet made more things possible and why they sometimes still must be used to get answers. Film Historian and filmmaker David Kiehn will share some of the stories of how his work has gotten films the credit they deserve, whether it is the still well-known A Trip Down Market Street, post-earthquake footage from 1906 San Francisco or a Ringling Brother Circus Parade from 1902.

9/9 to 9/10 : 10 AM to 3 PM : Rebirth and Restoration of the Rancho Higuera Historical Park

Location: 47300 Rancho Higuera Rd., Fremont, California 94539

Guests are invited to visit the Galindo-Higuera adobe, located on the Rancho del Agua Caliente. This rancho was awarded to Fulgencio Higuera in 1839 by then Governor Juan B. Alvarado. At the time, this land consisted of 9,563 acres or 15 square miles, and it supported 11,000 head of cattle and several hundred horses.

Our guests can still enjoy the verdant green hills and can imagine what it looked like with no fences, and with rancho cattle dotting the hillsides.

140 years later, in 1979, the adobe was falling down. Historians, architects, preservationists, and archaeologists agreed that the adobe was significant and worth saving; and thus, the restoration began. A total of 7,500 bricks had to be made to replace those that were missing.

Inside the building now are displays that describe the hide and tallow trade, a video that shows how the land was used from the Ohlone period to the restoration, as well as a display of Ohlone artifacts.

This adobe and its current 20 acres represent an important chapter in Spanish-Mexican history in California, and we at the Washington Township Museum of Local History are happy to share this gem with you.

Special activities for children (and adults): brick making, branding with paint, design-a-brand, corn husk and/or clothespin dollmaking, candle dipping, play horseshoes, and rope the steer.

9/9 to 9/10 : 10 AM to 4 PM : Visit the Washington Township Museum of Local History

Location: 190 Anza Street, Fremont, California 94539

Visit the museum to learn about the history of the Tri-City, from the Mission and Rancho Eras through to pre-incorporation — back when Fremont, Newark and Union City were made up of farms, ranches and dairies, and later, after the cities incorporated, suburban communities. Visitors will discover how the waves of families who moved here lived, worked, and established a thriving small-town community.

On view through September 2023: “Depicting Historical Places: Tri-City Artists & Their Work” — This exhibit features creations by local women of the past, including mosaics by Alice Ebright, photographs of historic buildings taken by Julianne Howe, and writings by Milicent Shinn. Artist Nancy Pratt’s watercolors of the five villages of Fremont round out the exhibit. These pieces interpret many of the same sites throughout the Tri-Cities across multiple decades, which showcase the multitude of possible interpretations of our local area.

Bonus: Our museum is a former fire station! Opened in 1954, the Mission San Jose station operated as a volunteer firehouse, as all former fire departments had been. Two years later, in 1956, Mission San Jose became part of the newly formed City of Fremont, and the volunteer fire department continued their service until the station officially became Fire Station #4 for the City of Fremont. In 1989, a new fire station was built on the corner of Paseo Padre Pkwy. and Pine St., where it is still housed today. In 1992, The City of Fremont leased our old fire station building to two local non-profits, and the Washington Township Museum of Local History opened its doors here later that same year.

We also feature an all-native California garden.

 9/10 : 1 PM to 4 PM : Baby Observations and a Chinese bunkhouse: What they tell us about life on the Shinn Ranch

Location: 1251 Peralta Blvd., Fremont, California 94536

Dr. Milicent Shinn's child development studies were carried out at the Shinn ranch. Her observations of her niece were the basis of her PhD dissertation (1898) and later book, The Biography of a Baby (1900). Her study notebooks recording her observations of her nephew Joseph Jr. were recently discovered in the attic. In addition to observations about Joe Jr.'s language development and motor milestones, Dr. Shinn also recorded glimpses of family life, like Joe Jr.'s love of Grandma Lucy and their Chinese cook, Fong Gan (perhaps because they both supplied him with sweet treats).

Efforts are underway to raise money to restore the fragile 100-year-old bunkhouse from the Shinn ranch "China Camp." The building will be used to highlight the historic role of the Chinese immigrants at the Shinn ranch and in our community. This history is recorded in the letters, ledgers, and photos of the Shinn House Museum. The building will be included in the nomination of the Shinn Ranch to the National Register.

The Shinn House Museum, at the back of the Shinn House, is open 1-4 pm. The Chinese Bunkhouse Preservation group will be on hand with the "Chinese Roots: Sketches of Life in the Washington Township" exhibit and will guide people to the bunkhouse.

9/9 : 10 AM to 4 PM : Treasure Island, San Francisco--Historic 1939 Art Deco World's Fair Building and Museum

Location: 1 Avenue of the Palms, San Francisco, California 94130

Come visit Treasure Island's fabulous Art Moderne air terminal, listed on the National Register. Since 1975 home to the Treasure Island Museum, with its exhibits and models showing and telling the island's dynamic history and projection into the future. Our building was constructed in 1937/38 to accommodate Pan American Airways and its passengers during the years of the Clipper flights across the Pacific (1938-1945), and serving as the Administration Building for the Golden Gate International Exposition, 1939-1940. Treasure Island then (1942-1997) became a major naval station especially during World War II and subsequent Navy and Marine engagements in the Pacific. Now the building is headquarters to the Treasure Island Development Group, in charge of the new redevelopment on the island as its ownership is transferred from the Navy to the City of San Francisco. Visit us to see the wonders of the 1939/40 GGIE and learn about the naval years as well as the ongoing redevelopment. We will have tours, speakers, exhibits, objects, and perhaps music!

9/10 : 11 AM to 5 PM : Mannequin Madness: where mannequins go to be Repurposed & Reused with Interactive Art Activities

Location: 1031 Cotton St, Oakland, California 94606

When the California Cotton Mills (Oakland Landmark #24) was built in 1883, it was the largest cotton mill west of the Mississippi River. At its peak the Mill covered 12 acres and employed 1,500 workers, mainly Portuguese immigrants. The mill was demolished in 1956 for the construction of the Nimitz Freeway which literally cut through the center of the mill.

Mannequin Madness is located one of the few remaining structures from the Cotton Mill. We are the largest mannequin recycling company in the USA. We keep mannequins from going into landfills by acquiring them from retailers who are closing or remodeling locations. We then resell mannequins to businesses and private individuals who reuse or repurpose them.

A visit here offers the following:

videos and signage about the history of the building and surrounding area.

A behind the scenes tour of our mannequin warehouse

An art class making a flower crown headdress with faux flowers and mannequin heads as the canvas. ($30 fee per person which is a 50% discount from the normal price)

9/9 : 12 PM to 3 PM : See a Victorian San Francisco Mansion - The Haas-Lilienthal House

Location: Haas-Lilienthal House, San Francisco, CA 94109

Visitors will have the opportunity to walk freely through the rooms of the historic Haas-Lilienthal House while learning about its luxuriant decor and rich history. The house and its furnishings illustrate not only its Victorian origins but also the changes made to it during the 86 years it was occupied by the Haas and Lilienthal families. Visitors will be able to look into the past and see firsthand how three generations of this extended family lived during their time here, 1886 to 1972. Knowledgeable volunteers will be on hand to answer questions and share details of the architecture of this Queen Anne-style home, with its gable roofs, rounded bay windows, and classically derived ornamentation.

The Haas-Lilienthal House is owned and operated by San Francisco Heritage, a non-profit dedicated to the preservation and enhancement of San Francisco's unique architectural and cultural identity. The house now serves as the organization's headquarters and as the city's only Gilded Age house museum open to the public year-round. It is also recognized as a National Treasure in 2012 by the National Trust for Historic Preservation and as San Francisco Landmark #69.

9/10 : 10 AM to 4 PM : Behind the Doors of the Berkeley City Club

Location: 2315 Durant Ave 2nd floor, Berkeley, CA 94704

The club docents will introduce you to Miss Morgan, who was the first woman architect certified by the Ecole des Beaux-Arts in Paris, and will lead you through the vaulted halls and arcaded courtyards of this medieval fantasy.

The Berkeley City Club is known for its steel-reinforced concrete walls and ceilings (artfully fashioned to look like wood), leaded glass windows, interior courtyards and magnificent indoor swimming pool. The building is a blend of Romanesque and Moorish styles of architecture common to the areas surrounding the Mediterranean Sea.

Julia Morgan's engineering skills, evident in the seismically solid building exterior, were matched by her attention to the interior designs for furniture, light fixtures, distinctive fireplaces and even dishes.

Constructed in 11 months, this six-story landmarked building opened in 1930 as the "Berkeley Women's City Club" with a membership of over 4,000.

The Club's founding group of women, all involved in separate civic, social, athletic and philanthropic causes, wanted to come together in a single, impressive, multi-use building. At the height of her career, Bay Area architect Julia Morgan was the natural choice for their project.

Originally a social club and residence for women, the Berkeley City Club has welcomed both women and men since 1962. Today it serves as a club, hotel, restaurant, events space and conference center.

Location: 2619 Dwight Way, Berkeley, CA 94720

Bernard Maybeck's 1910 masterpiece, First Church of Christ, Scientist, Berkeley, is a world-class architectural treasure and National Historic Landmark. It is a brilliantly creative integration of Arts & Crafts, Byzantine, Romanesque, Japanese, and Gothic Revival, built of modern industrial materials yet designed to be unusually home-like and connected to its garden and community surroundings. Across from today's People's Park, the center of Berkeley's counter-culture movement, the church's warm and honest character is defined by simplicity, unity, harmony, beauty, light and peace. In terms of light and space, Maybeck's Masterpiece is the first truly American church.

Location: 100 Kentucky Mine Road, CA 96125, Sierra City California

Located on highway 49 in the historic gold mining town of Sierra City, the Kentucky Mine Museum is a real treasure. Tours take visitors from the entrance of the gold mine with its blacksmith shop, into a miners' cabin, and on through the well-preserved stamp mill. By the end of the tour, guests will understand from beginning to end the workings of a California stamp mill.

The Kentucky Consolidated Gold Mining Company was formed in 1853 and was expanded to ten stamps in 1888. The mine was abandoned during the turn-of-the century and reopened by Emil Loeffler and his son Adolph. The Loefflers rebuilt the mill on the current site during the 1920s, reusing salvaged equipment from local mines from this early period. The mill was equipped with two water-powered Pelton wheels that turned belts and two 5-battery stamps in crushing ore to particles fine enough to pass through fine screens and onto the amalgamation shaker tables. Adolph Loeffler died tragically in a mine explosion in 1944; however, the family worked the ore up until 1953. In 1974, the mill was transferred to the Sierra County Historical Society to serve as stewards.

Today the park displays old mining equipment on the grounds and its museum exhibits let visitors glimpse into Sierra County's rich history. Come visit the Kentucky Mine Museum to step into the past!

 9/9 : 10 AM to 2 PM : Lemon Grove Parsonage Museum (1897) and the H. Lee House (1928)

Location: Treganza Heritage Park (both buildings in the park), Lemon Grove, California 91945

The Parsonage Museum (1897) was the original church in Lemon Grove. It fell into disrepair and the Lemon Grove Historical Society raised the funds to have it moved to its present location. Volunteers restored the Parsonage and volunteers still man the Parsonage. We have permanent displays of the history of Lemon Grove and change out a gallery throughout the year. Presently, we have the story of the Treganza Family and in 2020 we had the park renamed for them. Alberto Treganza designed and build the famous Lemon Grove Lemon for a parade and it has become a permanent fixture in our city. He was also the designer of the Spanish style Police Station in downtown San Diego across from Seaport Village as well as many private homes in San Diego.

The H. Lee House was saved from destruction when Highway 125 was built. With the help of Caltrans and fundraising by the Lemon Grove Historical Society, "Lady Lee" was trucked down to its home in the park in 2002. Citizens lined the street as she made her way, electric wires and trolley tracks were no obstacle for her! The Lee House is the home of Lemon Grove's archives and where we present our History Alive lectures once a month. The Lee House can also be rented for events of all kinds.

The Parsonage can be a docent or self-guided tour and we will select archives to share as well as a tour of the house and lovely gazebo and gardens at the H. Lee House. We also have a Community Garden next to the Parsonage which we will arrange to be open for tours.

Location: 11 S Ash Street, CA, Ventura California

The former Ventura Elks Lodge BPOE 1430 is now Ventura's coolest boutique hotel. The grand downtown building, constructed in 1928 in the Spanish Colonial Revival style, was occupied by the Elks fraternal organization from 1928 to 2004. When the Elks tried to sell the property, it sat on the market because the building was desperately in need of maintenance and was difficult to rehab for a change of use. Now the building has been transformed into the Hotel San Buena, a 32 room boutique hotel rehab that spared no expense on the details and was able to marry rehabilitation of historic elements with a compatible hotel use. The upstairs Elks Temple ballroom on the third floor is now the Velvet Hall event space. The expansive Lodge staircase, that was the only access to the upstairs Elks Temple, has been restored and an elevator added in the new addition for ADA access. Old fixtures and furnishings have buffed, burnished, reupholstered and rewired to include in the guest rooms and lobby. Sixteen new hotel suites have been sensitively added to the former parking lot at the back of the Lodge and follow the Secretary of the Interior's Standards with a three-inch gap between the buildings.

 9/10 : 11 AM to 4 PM : Exclusive Look at the Stunning Lobby of the 1925 Nirvana Building

Location: 1775 N Orange, Los Angeles, California 90028

In 1925, architect E. M. Erdaly designed an Oriental Revival building that featured a pagoda roof, a pagoda shaped sign out front, and other interesting oriental details. Owners promoted its unique look as early as 1926, calling it the "most exclusive apartments in Hollywood" in a Los Angeles Times ad.

On July 13, 2005, the building was named cultural historic monument #816 for Los Angeles.

Once richly decorated with wall paintings and plaster reliefs, the lobby of the Nirvana building was stripped of all the decorative details and painted white and red around the 60's. The restoration process, carried out by EC2 Art Conservation included the uncovering of the richly decorated walls and the restoration of all the murals. Elisabetta Perfetti, the lead Art Conservator on the project will be there explaining to visitors both the history of the building and the restoration process.

 9/9 : 11 AM to 5:30 PM : Anaheim Packing District Historical Tour

Location: 440 S. Anaheim Blvd, Anaheim, California 92805

Docents from the Anaheim Historical Society will guide guests through the historic buildings of the Anaheim Packing District. The Anaheim Packing District encompasses 3 historic landmarks, as well as the glorious 2-acre Farmers Park. The main ingredient of the foodie quintet is the Anaheim Packing House, one of the last remaining citrus packing warehouses (built in 1919) in Orange County, which has been historically preserved and retrofitted as a great original American market hall. The North anchor of the district is the Packard Building (built in 1922 -opened in 1923). Establishing the southern border is of the Packing District is MAKE, a 1917 former marmalade factory. Now, boasting more than 30 unique food and beverage artisans, the Packing District offers a culinary menagerie for families and visitors alike.

Also celebrate the 100th year of the Packard Building's original opening date with a Packard car show at Farmers Park during the Doors Open weekend, as well as a reveal of the Packard Building Mills Act Plaque. A 20-minute historical documentary about the historic Anaheim Packing District will also be on display for guests to enjoy at their leisure within the mini 4-seater theater inside the Packing House.

TBA : TBA to TBA : Behind-the-Scenes Tour of the USC Pacific Asia Museum

Location: 46 N Los Robles Avenue, Pasadena, CA 91101

Built in 1924, USC Pacific Asia Museum is housed in a unique three-story Chinese Imperial-style residence. The serene garden courtyard provides a calm space for reflection and meditation in the heart of Pasadena. Listed in the National Register of Historic Places, the museum was designed by the architectural firm of Marston, Van Pelt & Maybury at the request of pioneering collector and entrepreneur Grace Nicholson (1877-1948). Ms. Nicholson, a noted authority on Native American and Asian Art and artifacts, supervised the design of her combination gallery and museum, which was completed in 1929. Designed in the style of a Chinese imperial palace and featuring a central courtyard with a garden, koi pond, and decorative carvings, it has been called an outstanding example of 1920s revival architecture and is unique for its use of Chinese ornamentation.

Doors Open California guests will be invited to experience a tour of the historic landmark including the downstairs galleries and upstairs living quarters which now accommodate museum staff offices. Visitors will be given an in-depth look at the rich history of the museum as well as plans for the museum's path forward to increase cross-cultural understanding and exchange.

9/10 : 10 AM to 2 PM : The Lassie House Tour

Location: 1195 Washington Avenue, Pomona, California 91767

Built in 1900, The Lassie House is a historic landmark that was once the childhood home of Jon Provost - famously known as 'Timmy' from the television series Lassie. In 1927, the home was moved, from the original site, across Pomona on rollers pulled along by a team of mules. Provost, aka 'Timmy', lived in the home in its current location from 1955-1960, and would commute to Hollywood for his starring role in Lassie. The home was purchased in 2017 by Ray & Michelle Adamyk who extensively restored it to its original grandeur, with lots of Lassie touches, and invite you for a tour. lassiehouse.com
