CALIFORNIA PRESERVATION AWARD WINNERS ANNOUNCED BY THE CALIFORNIA PRESERVATION FOUNDATION

San Francisco, CA: The California Preservation Foundation (CPF) has announced eighteen winners of the 2020 Preservation Design Awards and President's Awards, recognizing excellence in leadership, historic preservation, conservation, and architectural design. This year's winners provide innovative and exemplary responses to many of the problems facing not only preservation, but the world at large, while adhering to the highest professional standards. These award winners join more than 500 projects recognized with a Preservation Design Award since 1983. Winning projects are selected by a jury of top professionals in the fields of architecture, engineering, planning, and history, as well as renowned architecture critics and journalists. CPF Executive Director Cindy Heitzman congratulated the winners, "We had more submissions this year than ever before. These projects represent the beneficial economic and cultural impact of historic preservation in our California communities."

The eighteen winning projects from across the state will be formally recognized at the California Preservation Awards on Wednesday, October 21, 2020, during an online ceremony scheduled for 6-7:30 p.m., Pacific. For the first time ever, the public will have the opportunity to join us—wherever in the world they may be—for both the ceremony and a month of live conversations and experiences scheduled throughout October, featuring some of the most talented professionals and leaders in history, historic preservation, and architectural design. CPF is also hosting Preservation ExPo 2020, a free, online trade show featuring a centralized location for discovering materials, services, and products for preservation and conservation projects. Other events include three lunchtime educational webinars and a movie night with CPF staff. We hope you will join us for this landmark Preservation Celebration. About the Preservation Design Awards

Since 1983 over 500 projects have been recognized with a Preservation Design Award. Winning projects are selected by a jury of top professionals in the fields of architecture, engineering, planning, and history, as well as renowned architecture critics and journalists. The jury selects projects that have furthered, to a notable degree, the purposes of the profession, consistent with the California Preservation Foundation's mission.

About the President's Awards

President's Awards honor people deserving of special recognition for their outstanding preservation efforts. Since its inception in 1991, this program has recognized more than 150 individuals and organizations whose work allows others to gain a deeper appreciation of historic resources and their value to California's economy, environment and quality of life. All proceeds from this event support the California Preservation Foundation's statewide education and advocacy programs.
